

The phone

👁 45 ✓ 5 ★ 10

Chapter 1 by -

This has been happening for over a month. The phone always rings at 5:00 saying, "You will regret what you did." the phone says. I asked my friends if they knew anything about this person, but they said simply no and walked away.

Chapter 2 by Eva

It just keeps getting weirder and weirder, and now it's also saying "If you don't ring in time you will be doomed" what did I do that was so bad and that I will regret it? But also I can't trace the call so therefor I can't call back. I m getting really confused and starting to feel more and more anxious about what might happen to me. When it first started to happen I thought it was just one of the school kids pranking me but obviously it's not.

Chapter 3 by alice hardaker

I sat and thought about it all night. Do I get the police involved? If I did, would it work out for the best? I don't know anymore. It was making me too anxious to sleep, too scared to even take my eyes away from the phone. I was constantly looking at it now, my mind working overtime. What could I do but get the police involved

Chapter 4 by I am a Pangolin

There was call from the phone. It was

A wrong number.

Chapter 5 by RedRoquet

4:45

15 minutes until he was presumed to call again.

The suspense was killing me. Even more than the person on the other side of the phone probably wants to.

4:50

Literally ten minutes until the annoying ringing should start again.

4:55

The time passes by, and with it comes more torture of curiosity.

Finally, the grandfather clock down the hall rings...

Once...

Twice...

Thrice...

Four times...

And a final five...

However, there was no phone call. No ringing from the phone.

But, instead a knock at the door. I hesitantly looked through the peephole. There was no one there. I looked again. Only the front porch showed.

I walked back and thought nothing of it until the door slammed open and a black hood covered my head.
